

I believe the Local Number Portability (LNP) should be considered, since it will make telephone's much more convenient for the customer. It will also force the cellular companies to be much more competitive. Cellular phones have grown tremendously in numbers over the last few years and I believe this law would be greatly beneficial to the environment in terms of all the phones that are just thrown away because they "have to change the phone to get a new carrier, or number". We should all agree consolidation is a good thing or the phones will just continue to pile up. We in the business already see this in our warehouses and office buildings. This business move far too fast to keep trying to trouble the customer and force them to keep up, we should accommodate the customer, since we are in the "service" business.
